CANADIAN IS THIRD AFTER SETTING PACE IN 800-METRE RUN

Babe Didrikson's 80-Metre Hurdle Win Day's Only Triumph for United States—Finnish Runners Again Defeated—Japan Scores Decisively in Hop, Step and Jump

OLYMPIC STADIUM, LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4 (CP).—This was not the United States' day at the Olympic Games, and 50,000 Americans sat back in comparative silence and with no little awe while athletes from scattered foreign nations did some flag waving on their own behalf.

It was no picnic for Finland, either, as successors to the great Paavo Nurmi took their second straight defeat, but Matti Järvinen, javelin thrower of luxe, saved some glory for the Finns with a matchless exhibition of spear tossing, just as Phil Edwards, of Hamilton, brought more laurels to Canada with a spectacular performance in the 1,600-metre final.

BRILLIANT TRIUMPH
Japan scored a brilliant triumph in the hop, step and jump, and the United States had to be content with Babe Didrikson's win in the 80-metre hurdles for women. Defeat of the Finns at the 1,500 metres and Edwards' remarkable comeback after Tuesday's grueling 800-metre race, were the day's features.

"And we thought old Phil was through," gasped a famous sports writer as the lanky colored runner raised his speed a notch to come thundering down the stretch a few feet in advance of the flying Paasik, Luigi Beccali, of Italy, and England's greatest runner, Jack Corbett.

MISSED BY INCHES
It was the second time in these games that Edwards had strode to within inches of Olympic glory, that he had pushed the field to record time. It was the second time he had broken famous running hearts with the amazing speed of his pace. Yet Phil could only get third, for the second time.

Edwards set out to defeat the Finns, Harri Larva, the defending champion; Eino Purje and Martti Luomamen, by setting a pace that even Nurmi never attempted. Glenn Cunningham, United States miler, tried it too.

The two headed the pack by seven yards at the end of the second lap, Cunningham running strongly with a short, powerful stride, and Edwards sweeping along with his ebony legs reaching out. On the third lap, when the Finns were exhausted, Cunningham was leading.

BANDITS REAP MAINLAND SPOIL
Grocer, Physician and Hotel Guests Victims of Un-caught Criminals

VANCOUVER, Aug. 4.—Two armed bandits late this afternoon and early tonight held up a grocery store and a physician, securing a total of $85, and escaping. Late tonight the bandits were still at liberty.

Shortly after 4 o'clock two men drove up to the London Grocery at Hastings Street and Vernon Drive. Entering the store they threatened the clerk, Miss A. Russell, with guns and took $75 from the cash register. They fled in an automobile which was found to have been stolen, and recovered later.

Description of the bandits led police to believe that it was the same armed pair who three hours later held up Dr. J. E. Spankie in his main street office, relieving him of $45.

Attacked by a man and a woman on Carrall Street shortly before midnight last night, C. E. Jolly, Ontario Street, reported that he had been robbed of $75. His attackers escaped.

Mrs. Frances Bertram, East First Avenue, reported that her home had been broken into and a quantity of jewelry stolen.

Early this morning, S. Rodgers was found by police lying at the corner of Main and Union streets, cut about the head and face. He was removed to hospital.

Alexander Johnny, of Nanaimo, reported to police the theft of $170 from his room in East Cordova Street.

A room prowler robbed Mrs. C. Richards, Hotel Vancouver, of $15 and a five-guinea gold piece. Jewelry was stolen from Mrs. R. N. Smith, 1124 Barclay Street.

Trusty Is Blamed for Fatal Fight

TUCKER PRISON FARM, Ark., Aug. 4.—Four convicts, one a trusty serving as guard, were killed and three others were wounded today in a break from the stockade and in a gun battle between the beleaguered fugitives and officers in a field.

Prison authorities blame the whole tragedy on what they termed a guard's betrayal of trust placed in him under the Arkansas prison rules, which permit the selection of trusted convicts to do guard duty.

Strongly Condemned by Commissioner

H. J. LOGAN IS CODEFENDED BY PROBE JUDGE

Judge Harvey Finds Senator Knew Evidence False in Gypsum Queen Case

VESSEL WAS LOST IN ORDINARY SEA PERIL

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (CP).—Strong condemnation of Senator Hance J. Logan, Amherst, N.S., is made by Chief Justice Harvey of Alberta in the Gypsum Queen case. The report to the Dominion Government follows inquiry into the war reparations payment of $71,276.62 to Capt. Freeman Hatfield, vanished alleged sole owner of the vessel, in March, 1931. Senator Logan was solicitor for Captain Hatfield.

Commissioner Harvey finds the evidence "indubitably" establishes that the three-masted Nova Scotia vessel had not been destroyed, as alleged by German submarine action in 1915. The Chief Justice further finds the Gypsum Queen had been lost through ordinary marine peril, and there was no justification for any claim for compensation out of German reparations moneys.

NEW EVIDENCE FALSE
"The evidence proved to my satisfaction," Commissioner Harvey states, "that the documentary evidence put in by Senator Logan to prove ownership of the Gypsum Queen, at the time of its loss, in Captain Hatfield in the form of a certificate purporting to be signed by J. S. Henderson, Parrsboro, N.S., was misleading and to that extent false, and that Senator Logan knew it to be such, and, moreover, that it was also false in that the signature was not that of J. S. Henderson, but of another person, and that the findings were not for the other findings."

BENEFIT BY PAYMENT
Commissioner Harvey comes to the conclusion that Senator Logan received "approximately one half" of the $71,276.62 reparations payment "for his own benefit."

DECISIONS NOT REACHED YET
Groups Meeting Separately at Edmonton Unemployment Relief Conference

EDMONTON, Aug. 4 (CP).—No definite action was forthcoming from today's session of the Western Unemployment Relief Conference being held here under the chairmanship of Premier J. E. Brownlee of Alberta.

Establishment of a commission to inquire into unemployment and relief in Western Canada was the main topic of discussion today, but no decision was reached. Important resolutions, though, were discussed, and were left over for redrafting.

Two distinct groups are attending. Cabinet Ministers representing Provincial Governments and mayors and aldermen representing urban centres.

MEET SEPARATELY
Each group met tonight separately with the understanding they would be prepared to come to the conference tomorrow ready to state the extent to which they are prepared to go in meeting each other in the various phases of the unemployment programme, particularly with respect to the share of relief costs.

In connection with the transient question, the Western Unemployment Relief conference has agreed to make some definite action must be taken to halt the demoralizing situation growing up with respect to the youth of the country, who are drawn into the ranks of the transients and are fast becoming "professional tramps and bums."

Tax Collector Getting Millions
VANCOUVER, Aug. 4 (CP).—More than two million dollars in tax payments poured into the city treasury today as the total of collections stood at $4,457,191, considerably better than in the corresponding period of last year.

A rush to take advantage of the 9 per cent rebate swelled the total during the past three days.

Badly Hurt In Attack By Squirrel
CHATHAM, Ont., Aug. 4.—Attacked by a black squirrel in her garden here, Mrs. Sara Maggs was terribly bitten about the arms, hands and back Wednesday. The squirrel jumped from a tree on to Mrs. Maggs' back and kept chewing at her until neighbors, drawn by the woman's cries, squeezed the animal to death.

Planning Hop From States to Athens

MISS KELLY KALEP

THE only Estonian woman to hold a pilot's license, plans to accompany Miss G. Williams as co-pilot on his proposed nonstop flight from New York to Athens, Greece, this month. Miss Kelly and Williams landed at Old Orchard, Me., last night but refused to discuss their plans.

ANOTHER CLASH IN CHACO AREA
Bolivia Rushing Troops to Scene of Dispute With Paraguay

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 4 (AP).—Another armed clash between Bolivian and Paraguayan troops in the disputed Chaco territory was reported today from Tarija, Bolivia, just across the Argentine border.

The report was sent out from Quica, an Argentine town within a few miles of the border, by a staff correspondent of La Nacion, of Buenos Aires.

The correspondent picked up "an official Bolivian bulletin" posted at Tarija, asserting that a heavy artillery bombardment had commenced in the Pilcomayo sector of the Chaco. The bulletin quoted Division Commander Colonel Pena. The news was received enthusiastically at Tarija.

ARMY IN FIELD
This dispatch followed closely the arrival at Perito, Argentina, today of Gen. Miralra Pando from Bolivia with reports that Bolivia would have 11,000 troops in the Chaco within a few days.

General Pando said 6,000 soldiers were already in the field, all of them trained for duty in the jungle country. He said he passed more than a hundred and fifty Bolivian supply trucks en route down from La Paz.

BOTH WOULD ARBITRATE
GENEVA, Aug. 4 (AP).—President Jose Matos of the League of Nations Council today called the Bolivian Government and the Paraguayan Government to arbitrate.

"Justify the assumption that the two nations desire a pacific settlement" of their Chaco territory dispute.

Paraguay signified willingness to arbitrate, and Bolivia, replying last night, said it "did not refuse recourse" to arbitration.

FORMER LEADER IS LAID TO REST
Members of All Parties Join in Paying Last Respects to Senator Willoughby

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Aug. 4.—Impressive scenes marked the funeral services held here this afternoon for Senator W. B. Willoughby, former leader of the Conservative party in the Canadian Senate, who died Monday night after an illness of twelve months. He was seventy-three years of age.

Members of all political creeds joined in paying tribute to the dead Senator, and men who have made their mark in Saskatchewan's official life acted as honorary pallbearers. Members of the local Bar Association attended in a body, as also did the members of the city council.

Masonic services at the graveside, in Rosedale Cemetery, were conducted by officers of the Grand Lodge of Saskatchewan, in memory of one who had played a prominent part in Masonic work throughout the province as a past grand master of their lodge.

Bourbon whisky prices are reduced still more. A brand selling for $4.20 will be priced at $3.50; another at $2.85 will fall to $2.50.

PRICES OF GIN
Prices of gin will be brought down, and an imperial quart of the best Canadian gin will cost $4.25, and the reputed quart $2.75. Another brand selling for $2.45 will go for $2.00. In similar fashion all Canadian liquors will be affected by the new price list, now approved.

The board, it was also announced, is to shorten its stock of some brands that are little in demand, and may sell off unprofitable brands as "specials" at prices to clear the stock. Wine prices will not be affected, it is stated.

PROGRESS AT PARLEY PONTS TO REVIVAL OF TRADE IN B.C.

British Lumber Importers Agree to Soviet Embargo and Increased Preference

WOULD GIVE CANADA $46,000,000 MARKET

OTTAWA, Aug. 4 (CP).—Canadian exporters and British lumber importers placed their report before the Imperial Conference tonight. The document, signed after a sitting which lasted until a late hour, is in two parts, it was definitely learned tonight.

An embargo by the United Kingdom against saw lumber imports from Soviet Russia.

INCREASED PREFERENCE
2. An increase in duty against all foreign countries on sawn lumber from 10 to 25 per cent, with Empire lumber continuing on the free list.

The second part of the report is signed by the group of British importers said to control the importation of lumber into the United Kingdom. Members of this group agree on the proposed increase in preference from 10 to 25 per cent, but on the question of control of imports from the Soviet Union, they suggest a control of the amount of Russian imports by the British lumber importers themselves.

WOULD OPEN HUGE MARKET
The object of the discussions which have taken place is to give Canada one-third of the annual $140,000,000 potential timber market in the United Kingdom. If achieved, this would mean the Dominion would ship in sawn lumber 1,300,000,000 feet board measure approximately—these are official figures—each year to the Mother Country.

Dog Makes Debut With Parachute
ST. CATHARINES, Aug. 4.—Cal, four-year-old silver grey police dog of Harold Brooker, Niagara Falls, Ont., upheld all the traditions of faithful dogdom today when he followed his master from the wing of an airplane in the first dog parachute jump known. Cal wore a separate "chute" and floated gracefully making a four-point landing only a few feet away from Brooker.

ALL CLAIMS SETTLED
VANCOUVER, Aug. 4.—With a payment of $13,500 to Douglas Walter Physick and his wife, Isaac, Margaret Physick, Thurlow Street, the city of Vancouver has settled all claims arising out of George Viaduct accident of March 15, 1931, which took a toll of four lives.

DIFFERENT METHODS
In some items the present tariff against British goods would be wiped out altogether. In other items it would be materially decreased. In some instances the preference to Great Britain would be increased by boosting the existing tariff against foreign countries. The main hope of the Canadian delegation is to show there would be no change in the tariff.

NEW MARKETS ARE NECESSITY
British Tariff on Irish Free State Goods Dislocates Trade Connections

DUBLIN, Aug. 4 (CP).—President Eamon de Valera's emergency request for $6,000,000 "to aid the Free State's commerce and industry," will receive further consideration by the Dail. When the debate was adjourned tonight, political circles believed the President intends to take to the emergency fund money collected in respect of the disputed land annuities, which are now held in a suspense account.

Mr. de Valera is expected to announce a date after which the offer to arbitrate the annuities question with Great Britain will be withdrawn, and the annuities taken over by the Free State Government.

The effect of the British tariff on imports from the Free State has been to dislocate trade connections, Mr. de Valera explained in the Dail today. The Government, he said, needed money in its search for new markets.

THREE ELEVATORS MASS OF FLAMES
Shortage of Water Makes Fire Equipment Unable to Fight Blaze in Manitoba

HIGH BLUFF, Man., Aug. 4 (CP).—Three grain elevators were a roaring mass of flames here tonight as bucket brigades fought valiantly to save the railroad station from destruction. The blaze started high up in a cleaning and drying elevator owned by the Foray Elevator Company, and in a few minutes the whole building was on fire.

The adjoining storage elevators caught fire. One of the latter contained 34,000 bushels of wheat. An emergency call brought fire equipment from Portage la Prairie, eight miles away, but shortage of water made the equipment useless. Chemical apparatus was powerless to stop the blaze. As the wind was light and blowing away from the town, no other buildings, apart from the station, were endangered.

CAR WRECK FATAL
MOOSE JAW, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Frank Barber, of Keeler, was killed, her husband, daughter Vera, eight years old, and Mr. H. Wylie were slightly injured when the car in which they were riding overturned two miles east of Keeler this afternoon.

INDICTED FOR MURDER
WINSTON-SALEM, N.C., Aug. 4 (AP).—Libby Holman Reynolds, Broadway torch singer, and Albert Walker, Winston-Salem youth, were indicted today for the murder of Libby's husband, Smith Reynolds, heir to an estimated $15,000,000 tobacco fortune.

Forest Fire Raging in Foothills
CALGARY, Aug. 4 (CP).—North-west winds tonight were spreading the forest fire raging near Moose Mountain in Alberta's foothill country. About seventy men were battling the conflagration, which is eating through large stands of spruce in the forestry reserve about forty miles west of Calgary.

The fire covers an area about a mile and a half long and a mile wide.

STANDS ALOOF ON COALITION

T. D. Pattullo Explains Reason Why He Does Not Support Joint Government

T. D. Pattullo, Leader of the Opposition in the British Columbia Legislature, explained to a quiet audience in the Victoria Liberal Association clubrooms last night, the reasons why he was standing aloof from the coalition movement. Prior to his arrival, the association had held a two-hour stormy session in which a move to bring about a closed convention for the nominating and selection of candidates in the forthcoming election was defeated. Mr. Pattullo said that there was no reason why the Liberal party should be drawn into a coalition government "just because the Conservative Government has not the courage to do its duty. There is no need for a coalition government," the speaker said, "when the present administration has a three-to-one majority on the floor of the House."

Touching upon the question of reducing representation, he pointed out the danger in cutting the number to "such a ridiculous figure as fourteen, as has been mentioned. With a cabinet of seven, you would have only seven left. Why, such a government could stay in forever. Remember, there is always safety in numbers," Mr. Pattullo declared. Reduction in representation would save little and make for more expensive administration in the long run, inasmuch as representatives in so small a government would be victimized by the militant minority. They would be victims of this group, he explained, by virtue of the fact that each member's constituency would be so large he would never be able to cover all the territory proper during his term of office.

pected to come up, Phil moved further ahead, passing Cunningham and Finland's hopes were blasted. Larva sprinted hard for 300 yards in an effort to come up to the negro, but he fell back. Purje wisely kept his distance.

FOUR IN THE RACE

Only Cornes, Beccall and Cunningham were in the race with Edwards over the last 400 metres. Tiring fast from his breath-breaking pace, Phil must have called on his great heart to see him through to the finish. At the head of the home stretch he actually pulled further ahead of Cunningham, as the American staggered after him. Suddenly Beccall loomed behind. The Italian had more left than any one in the race. Head thrown back, black hair flying in the breeze, he drove past Edwards 100 yards from the finish, and went on to a brilliant win in 3 minutes 51 1-5 seconds, setting a new Olympic record.

MAGNIFICENT FINISH

Cornes fought up the stretch with a magnificent finish to catch Ed-

Irish Runner Wins Hurdles

TAKE UP MANY KINDS OF WORK

Cambridge Graduates Are Making Careers in All Corners of Empire

to 365 in 1931, but their distribution gives a characteristic index to what Cambridge men adopt as careers, exclusive of medicine, law and the church, as mentioned. Whether through educational appointments, commerce, scientific research, industry, or the civil service, Cambridge pours its men into all corners of the world. The records kept by the appointments board of the careers which it has inaugurated read like a geographical card-index.

IN MANY MONIES

In India, Egypt, Africa, Ceylon, the Malay States, Iraq—in all the Dominions and colonies of the Empire, in brief—and in the Far East, Cambridge men are occupied in realizing (in a hundred different monies) upon what they gained at the university. If it is true, as Roosevelt believed, that a man's education only begins when he leaves college, the appointments board, for its part, wants to give Cambridge seniors as good a start as possible in life's freshman class.

PUBLICAN WAS FRIEND OF MANY

A warm tribute was paid by Mr. P. T. Barrington-Ward, K.C., the presiding magistrate at Thames Police Court, to the memory of Mr.

NEARLY CAUGHT

Jimmy Ball, of Winnipeg, also took it easy, though he was almost caught napping on the stretch in his second test. Jimmy was loafing home, apparently well entrenched in the fourth qualifying place, when Hjalmar Johansson, of Norway, cut loose with a dazzling finish. The Norwegian drew up even with Ball ten yards from the finish, but Jimmy sprang away from him to win the place.

Eastman, Carr and Lieut. Godfrey Rampling, England's thick-set running ace, were impressive in their trials, though only Carr made any effort to win heats. Times were all comparatively slow. Ray Lewis, of Hamilton, was eliminated in the second round.

BREAKS RECORD AGAIN

The high flying Texas girl, Miss Didrikson, was too fast for the field opposed to her in the girls' hurdles final, though the race was one of the best of the day. Miss Didrikson galloped home first in 11 7-10 seconds, breaking the record of 11 9-10 she established yesterday.

Alda Wilson, of Toronto, was last in the field of six, but she was more than two yards behind the winner, Evelyn Hall, United States, was second; Marjorie Clark, South Africa, third; Schuller, United States, fourth, and Violet Webb, Great Britain, fifth. Jack Portland, of Collingwood, Ont., was entered in the hop, step and jump, but he was far below the standard set by the Japs. Portland's best jump was 42 feet 5 1-8 inches. Nambu, of Japan, won a leap of 51-7, setting a new world record. Len Hutton, of Montreal, also entered, but did not compete.

CHANGES IN TARIFF MANY

be big increases in importations from the United Kingdom, particularly in iron and steel products and in chemical products. In the matter of woollens, some 40 per cent of the entire Canadian market is already held by British manufacturers, with 50 per cent held by Canadian mills and 10 per cent foreign importations.

GREAT OPPORTUNITIES

Great opportunities are foreseen in the iron and steel business and in the chemical trade to help the Motherland. The Dominion is also a heavy importer of chemicals, including those used for dyeing, for the manufacture of explosives, for fertilizer, for the making of paint, as well as drugs, medicines and soaps. The textile industry, the leather industry and the newspaper are all heavy importers of chemicals.

Miscellaneous manufactured goods would also be given substantial preferences. It is hoped to increase the importations of anthracite coal, although it already comes in free from Wales. The imports of copper and brass products from the United Kingdom would also be increased by the tariff changes proposed.

The success of the committee on standardization, now endeavoring to bring uniformity between the various Dominions and the United Kingdom in the matter of metal parts and other manufactured goods, will have much to do with the extent to which the United Kingdom manufacturer will be able to take advantage of the increased preference in iron and steel products.

APPLE GROWERS ANXIOUS

OKANAGAN—Apple growers are much concerned this season over market prospects, as no steps have so far been taken to secure "orderly" methods. One group of growers is in favor of adopting such methods, while others believe in "go as you please." There is apparently little chance of a settlement.

HATT'S 1418 Douglas Street HARDWARE

Charles Brown, whose death occurred at his famous public house, "Charles's Tavern," Limehouse, E., at the age of twenty-three.

"It is only fitting," said Mr. Barrington-Ward, "I should refer to the very great loss the neighborhood and the world in general has sustained through the much regretted death of Mr. Charles Brown."

"I had the pleasure of his acquaintance, and the neighborhood, in my opinion, has lost a very great benefactor. He showed remarkable generosity in very many directions."

"In this district he was a supporter of every good cause by means of his money, influence and personality, and the London Hospital, among other institutions, has lost a most loyal and faithful friend and subscriber."

"I am not putting it too high when I say that sympathy will be expressed with his relatives from all classes of people, both at home and abroad."

Dockers, watermen, sailors and people from the Chinese quarter visited the tavern to pay their last respects to "Charles Brown," as he was known to all. He lay amid his treasured Oriental curios and works of art, this man who was a taverkeeper, philanthropist, and a host of things.

Contestants in the Riley Motor Club twenty-four-hour auto trial, which ended at Llandudno, Wales, had a strenuous time. The 116 cars which were entered went through a twelve-hour night stretch, a day run over some of the most exacting roads in Wales, and two hill climbs. Practically all the cars finished. Rain and mist made the narrow, winding roads dangerous, and in the early hours of morning four officials had to work strenuously filling in a gully in the road which would have stopped the trial. The work was completed just before the first competitor arrived. On Penryn Hill, which had a one-in-five gradient, Jack Hobbs, Mrs. Harold Goodwin and Lady Mary Grosvenor, did the four-fifths of a mile ascent in less than three minutes.

Sinclair's Liver Is Passed by Customs And Pays No Duty

Finds It No Joke Getting by Japanese Inspectors but Quite Pleasant Being "Served With a Smile" in Native Hotel

By GORDON SINCLAIR
KOBE—How would you like to be wakened from a sound sleep at five in the morning by a yellow man built along the lines of a super-dreadnought, demanding, "Have you any refined liver?" Any rhinoceros tusks, turtle shells or cow bones?" I rolled over and rubbed sleepy eyes to see if this was a nightmare or somebody's idea of a gag. A con throbbed and another yellow man popped his head inside. "Doctor waiting; must see master now."

GORDON SINCLAIR

We had reached Japan and I knew now why they called it Land of the Rising Sun. I'd say land of the rising passengers. Anyway, they were getting a rise out of me. The lad with the brass buttons and bull neck had a pile of papers in his hand and started checking things off. "Refined liver," he repeated, "you have got?" "No, no; just ordinary liver."

"Let me see it." "See what, my liver?" "Yes, yes, all of it." "Hold on a minute. I mean I only got my own liver. Inside me. I've never seen it myself." "Coward, how do you have some?" "Not unless that's Japanese for portable typewriter, I haven't." "Rhinoceros tusks, precious stones, foreign woods, perfume, sewing machines, have you any?" "Not one." "Any blankets, carpets, furs or leather goods?" "My luggage is leather."

"Nothing." "What have you of ivory?" "Nothing." "SNAPPY BATHING SUIT" "What articles of personal adornment have you?" "Well, my bathing suit is pretty snappy; a duchess helped me to buy it." "No joking, please; sign this declaration and fill out these other forms. First, however, you must see the doctor."

I climbed into a kimono which was a rash of black dragons and went down the corridor. Looked like the ship was a fire because everybody else was running around in kimonos, too. The sun was just sneaking up over the Japanese hills and women drivers were yelling for cabs.

The doctor sat with legs crossed, looking at our eyes. He just looked and stamped our cards as we went past. Army days all over again.

GETTING INVOLVED
The immigration form was a bit involved. "Have you been in jail?" "No and what for?" "No." "Are you male or female?" "Male." "Complete?" Now what's the answer to that one? Am I completely male? I gave up and let the doctor decide for himself. He immediately afterwards ran into trouble. "Why have you come to Japan?" "To enjoy and examine the country." "How long will you stay?" "I don't know."

"Give a short history of your life." "That was a stumper. Once I won a medal and once I stood number one at school. That should be mentioned. I have some children who wonder who this strange man is and I bought International Nickel at $64. I finally wrote: "Born, raised, educated, Toronto, Canada. Still live up and let the doctor decide for himself. He immediately afterwards ran into trouble. "Why have you come to Japan?" "To enjoy and examine the country." "How long will you stay?" "I don't know."

LIBERAL RANKS SPLIT
IN TOWN BY CLOSED CONVENTION PROPOSAL

amendment to the constitution carried. Mr. O'Halloran spoke for half an hour in order to secure support for the closed convention motion and, during the course of his remarks, said the move had been inspired by resuscitate "the dead ward associations, associations that are more dead than the Liberal party."

DEAD AS GHOSTS
They were so dead, the speaker said, that when a Liberal ward worker had appealed to his association to get a position in the Parliament Buildings for his daughter he had failed, and a person living across the street from him, who was not a Liberal supporter, had secured a position for his daughter where the Liberal had failed.

Painful Piles
Go Quick—No Cutting—No Suffering
Thousands who have itching, bleeding or protruding piles have not yet learned that quick and lasting relief can only be accomplished with an internal medicine. Neither salves nor suppositories remove the cause.

Bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel causes piles. The hemorrhoidal veins are flabby, the bowel walls weak—the parts almost dead. To get rid of Piles an internal medicine must be used to stimulate the circulation, drive out the thick impure blood, heal and restore the affected parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonard, after years of study, found a real internal Pile remedy. He called his discovery HEM-ROID, and prescribed it for 1,000 patients with success in over 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer, no matter how stubborn their case, might try his prescription with a money back guarantee.

So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Macfarlane and Vancouver Drug stores and all good druggists invite you to try HEM-ROID tablets with guarantee of money refunded if they do not end your Pile misery.

barrage of criticism from the opposition and the hectic session began. He refuted the statement that the resolution had been given unanimous support by the central executive.

"NOT UNANIMOUS"
"There was only a small representation at the meeting," he declared. "There were twenty-seven present out of a membership of sixty-four and the motion never should have been voted on at a poorly represented meeting."

Mr. O'Halloran jumped up to make some statement at this stage, but there was so much heckling and crossfire of epithets that nothing could be distinguished coherently.

"Mr. O'Halloran has said that meetings in the past, particularly one, have been packed with taxi drivers. But I say to you that a taxi driver has as much right to vote as Mr. O'Halloran, because they are residents of Victoria and that cannot be said of Mr. O'Halloran."

SECRET MEETING
Mr. Bishop continued to make charges that under the closed convention system delegates to the convention in the Nanaimo Federal riding had been chosen from a list at a meeting of five men in a downtown office; that the delegates had been subsequently canvassed, and the "proper" candidate elected.

This charge brought down such a trade of counter charges that no one could be heard distinctly, and the constable at the back of the hall edged forward a little to be peeped in case his assistance was necessary. Many of the members became almost too vehement in their protest to the charges or counter charges for the meeting to be comfortable.

"This is not a Conservative meeting," someone in the front row remonstrated, but the heckling and shouting continued.

Finally Mr. B. Jackson, K.C., who presided as chairman, restored order, and Mr. Bishop continued. He asked his audience what was to stop packing a convention by using proxies and delegates chosen and supported by prospective candidates.

CHAIRMAN ASSISTED
Once again the uproar arose, and only after Fred McGregor, shouting at the top of his voice, appealed to the audience to give the speaker a chance, was he permitted to continue.

Mr. Bishop then proceeded to reveal another phase of what he alleged to be manipulation. He claimed that two wards were being created in Oak Bay so that there could be double representation on the central executive for the purpose of manipulation.

This was the concluding remark of Mr. Bishop, and was the signal for R. G. Rowbottom to dash to the platform and denounce as false the last charge made by Mr. Bishop.

WARD MECHANICS
A. D. MacFarlane, K.C., former president of the Oak Bay Liberal Association, then took the platform and declared that the resolution sponsored by Mr. O'Halloran was a retrograde step, and that he did not wish to see "party politics or nomination conventions dominated by ward mechanics."

At this stage in the proceedings, Mrs. W. D. Todd spoke in opposition to the motion, and made the disclaimer that she was only a delegate to the central organization and would be allowed to vote under the proposed amended constitution and that members of the Victoria Liberal Association would practically be non-entities without power to vote. Her discovery and denunciation of the scheme was cheered to the echo.

Following another speech by A. B. McNeil, who also opposed the motion, an amendment was introduced to the effect that the resolution not be dealt with at the present time. This was tantamount to a six-month hold on the question, and created some uncertainty in the minds of those present.

However, after much cross-questioning in which the chairman was entirely ignored, Mr. Jackson finally put the amendment to a vote.

RESENT VOTE COUNT
It appeared that the amendment had been carried by an overwhelming majority, but when scrutineers were appointed to make a count the amendment was lost by one vote.

Suspensions, which were uppermost in many persons' minds, were immediately voted on in no uncertain terms, and a demand was made for a secret ballot. They failed to obtain one, but when a similar situation arose in connection with the original motion, the demand was so insistent that a ballot had to be taken, and the motion to hold a closed convention was defeated by 127 votes to eighty-one.

East Indian Philosopher To Be Heard
Krishnamurti, hailed by many Theosophists as the Messiah, will speak at a public meeting to be held in the City Temple at 8 o'clock to-night.

The East Indian arrived here Wednesday and is now residing at the Summer home of Mrs. M. King, 280 King George Terrace, at Shawinigan Lake.

Krishnamurti is an outstanding leader in spiritual thought and believes in oneness of everything and that modern problems can be solved only through the individual.

During his illustration of how the Liberal ward association had been remiss in securing party patronage for one of its supporters Mr. O'Halloran was interrupted twice, once by the chairman, who adjured him to warn him of the trap into which he was falling, and the speaker did not heed the warning.

RADLY HECKLED
The speaker continued to criticize the ward association work, but was not permitted to proceed, when members of the audience shouted "Sit down." "Shut up." "Let's get down to business."

After this Mr. O'Halloran hastened to the conclusion of his remarks, after which Mr. Cox, the second speaker, spoke for a few minutes.

Mr. Bishop, secretary of the Victoria Liberal Association, opened the

"I recommend you to insure against damage from water; but there is nothing wrong with our water."

OF FOWL GRADING
Dominion Official Is in City Co-operating in Standard Grading

G. R. Wilson, of Vancouver, poultry promoter for British Columbia under the Dominion livestock branch of the Department of Agriculture, is in Victoria initiating the system of Government standard selling of poultry here.

W. E. Hager, local egg inspector, is taking over the duties of acting for the department in connection with the standard grading of poultry.

Those stores which are adopting the system, which is intended to safeguard the uninformed purchaser of poultry, are being shown the method of judging and applying the proper tag to the breast of the fowl so that the buyer may be assured of getting what he pays for. A display of fowl properly tagged was made by Mr. Wilson and is on view in the Great meat store, Yates Street.

In the Canadian Government standards there are two classes, milk-fed and selected. Briefly, the definitions are as follows:
Milk-fed—Showing a white color in the deposits of fat and a fine and soft texture in the skin and flesh; in the outward evidence of special breeding.

Selected—Showing a yellow color in the deposits of fat, and no evidence of milk feeding. In these classes there are four grades, viz., specials, Grade "A," "B" and "C."

PROBLEM OF LUMBER TRADE

Nova Scotia, as well as British Columbia, is putting forward every effort to obtain, on behalf of the Canadian lumber industry, an extension of trade in the British market. The Nova Scotia Government has prepared its brief in attractive fashion and with arguments that are conclusive, since the desire prevails to build up inter-empire trade in the commodity. The facts of the situation are simple enough. The United Kingdom buys annually seven-eighths as much lumber as the sawmills of this country produce in normal times. She is securing the vast bulk of her requirements from Northern Europe. It may be true that conditions are averse to trade being developed with Canada in the lumber product. It is exactly to overcome disadvantages of this character that the present Imperial Conference is in session. The slump in Canada's lumber trade has had repercussions which are proving very detrimental to the economic life of the country. In this respect the brief prepared by Nova Scotia says:

"The serious decline of the forest industries in the province has reduced the demand for workers in the woods to such an extent that ready cash is so scarce among the small farmers and fishermen—the people who mainly are occupied in the seasonal work of the forest industries—that they have been living a 'hand-to-mouth' existence, and without doubt this condition is solely responsible for the exodus of the young people belonging to these classes to the United States and the West."

Nova Scotia finds the chief market for her lumber in the New England States. Depression there, however, has practically destroyed that market and the lumbermen have been hard hit. Nova Scotia can produce an annual lumber supply of 200,000,000 ft. m. What the province needs is a steady and certain market, and there is a right to look to Britain as the largest wood-importing country in the world. Britain imports annually $30,000,000 worth of softwoods alone. Of this amount $28,000,000 worth is derived from Finland, Sweden, the United States and Russia. Canada is a poor fifth on the list of countries which supply Britain. She wants to come well up on the roll, and at least to get a substantially greater proportion of the trade than she enjoys at present.

The case for both British Columbia and Nova Scotia has been presented fully to the Imperial Conference, and there are excellent hopes of something substantial being done. Already there is an indication that the British delegates are prepared to recommend control of Soviet Lumber imports to the United Kingdom, provision for Britain to take one-third of her supply from Canada, and, as well, to increase the British preference on sawn lumber from Canada from 10 to 25 per cent. These are steps for which Canada has been agitating. If they are made effective they should go a long way towards building up a permanently assured and satisfactory lumber trade with Britain.

BRITAIN'S STEADYING POWER

The Canadian Economic Research Bureau in New York has issued a bulletin that is brimful of optimism. It predicts in the first place success for the present Imperial Conference, being of opinion that it will lead to important changes in the course of world trade, meaning increased intra-empire trade and all-round Imperial advantages. It has words of praise for British leadership at the Lausanne Conference and for the manner in which the British people have responded to the £2,000,000,000 conversion loan. These moves, it believes, are rapidly increasing world confidence in London as a financial centre. The bulletin says that so much capital has flowed into London that the bank rate is now the lowest in 35 years, and that, "with ample money and a sound government, the British are determined to achieve the last factor necessary for world trade revival, and that is the establishment of universal confidence through such media as Lausanne and the Ottawa Conference."

Located on the spot, the Canadian Economic Research Bureau believes that New York has shown a tendency to mishandle the financial situation. "As international banker," it says, "New York has badly handled its foreign loans and demonstrated that it is not possible in a period of ten or fifteen years to create either a sufficiently posted organization or intricate machine such as is necessary to carry on an international banking business. It will take many years before the American investment buying public will have confidence in the foreign issues of American investment bankers. We believe that we are fast approaching a time when England will be the cheapest market in the world for Canadian financing. The experience of the last decade has made clear to the world that no nation has been able to replace the steady power of the British people in world finance."

MR. DE VALERA'S GOAL

If Mr. de Valera's conception of an Irish republic, in which Ulster is included, is ever realized it will not be until his name has ceased to be even a memory. His Minister of Posts and Telegraphs says such a conception is the policy of the Irish President. That no doubt explains his attitude regarding the Oath of Allegiance and Land Annulment. In the meantime he seeks to get what he can from the Imperial Conference by trade arrangements with any and every part of the Empire other than Britain; in other words, he seeks to take away trade from Britain and distribute it elsewhere in parts of the British domain. That is very far from being the purpose of the Imperial Conference, so it may be that Mr. de Valera's policy is to create notes of disunion at Ottawa as a part and parcel of his campaign to reach the Irish republican goal.

In the propagandist policy being pursued by the followers of Mr. de Valera, his Minister of Posts and Telegraphs says that Britain cannot hope for a settlement of the war debt question with the United States until she settles the question of the future political status of Ireland. This assumption is fantastic inasmuch as it has been made perfectly clear that the problem of Ireland's political future is one for Ireland herself. Wherein it touches Britain is in the matter of Ulster. That part of Ireland has made it perfectly clear that it intends to retain the British connection, and so long as it does the goal of republicanism for all Ireland cannot be achieved, not even by armed force. So long as Ulster and the Free State are separate political entities, as they are now, there can only be self-determination for one if there is for the other.

In the meantime the policy being pursued by the Free State President is equivocal in the extreme. He has taken advantage of the British connection in having sent delegates to Ottawa. He is also, while that conference is in session, carrying out a tariff policy against Britain as a reprisal because Britain is determined to collect Land Annuities on behalf of those who advanced moneys for the Irish land purchase scheme. Mr. de Valera has withheld those Land Annuities and has appropriated £2,000,000 for propaganda purposes to divert trade from Britain. In other words, he is using the payment of the Land Annuities to save the economic consequence for having repudiated the payment of a legitimate debt. In the meantime Free State Ireland is suffering in a score and one ways, both industrially and in the loss of moral and political prestige.

The most gruelling event so far held at the Olympic Games at Los Angeles, the 50,000 metres walk, has been won by Thomas Green, who is 38 years of age. He is a member of the Belgrave Harriers, and in 1931 won the London to Brighton walk in 8 hrs. 5 mins. 43 secs. Walking in competition is one exercise in which youth has no advantage over age, at least up to 40 years and perhaps a little later in life.

The feat of E. Tolan in winning both the 100 and 200 metres races at the Olympic Games is one that has been accomplished three times. The first time was in 1904 when E. Hahn, of the United States, won the former event in 11 seconds and the latter in 21 3/5 seconds. Then in 1928 came Percy Williams, of Canada, to win the 100 metres at Amsterdam in 10 4/5 seconds and the 200 metres in 21 4/5 seconds. Tolan's performance is the best of the three dual feats. His time for the 100 metres was 10 3/10 seconds and for the 200 metres 21 2/5 seconds.

THE OLYMPICS

Across the vast expanse of sunlit sea. The snow-clad summits glow beyond the skies—Great giant diamonds glowing in the sun. Serene within the cloudless vault of heaven They hold communion with the wandering stars.

Far down beneath, the flowing silver clouds Enfold their sloping flanks in fleecy veils. Of drifting fog mist. Words seem to shrink And lose their skill in efforts to portray The awful grandeur of these dazzling heights. Ere day had been divided from the night; Ere the tidal years, ere time began, Their summits caught the vagrant wandering light Of new-made stars. Here at their watery base The mighty dinosaur and mastodon Their dreadful combat joined in brutal strife. With shrill and savage scream, the winged bat—The fierce retractor of lizard form, Battled the clumsy plesiosaurs. The crude young world was bathed in streams of blood.

The days were drawn into the flowing years, The years crept on to circling centuries, Ages and ages passed, once had fled Ere in the latter day from man evolved Slowly from out the serpent and the scum. These lofty pinnacles looked down in scorn To see the puny pigmies at their toil.

Still through the crowding centuries to come, High o'er the storms and tumult of the world, These crystal jewels set within the skies, In awful pride and silent majesty, Shall bathe their images in glassy seas. When ages cease and time shall have an end, When frozen oceans and the barren earth Shall feel no more within their shrunken veins The cold rays of the waste and dying sun, These rocky ribs and icy barriers Shall straight re-echo back the strident sound Of Gabriel's clarion trumpet and the shout Of hosts arising from the crowded tomb. Of countless ages; these to their reckoning; Shall perchance on strong exultant wing Shall circle round the everlasting throne And hymn the triumph of the spirit throng.

But not the bounds of hell, the heights of heaven, Nor all the starry orbs that sweep the skies, Shall in their widest vision scarce conceive Glories more lovely than these gems of God, Set ere within this circle of the seas, To fill the soul with worship and with prayer.

Note and Comment

By R. B. D.

On life's vast ocean diversely we sail, Reason the card, but passion the sail.

—Pope

The German electoral system, like German pre-war culture, is peculiar. It seems that in Germany the voter has no direct contact with the vote, if we are correct in this describing the candidate seeking election. All German votes are cast for the party, and after balloting is completed the votes cast are divided according to perfect mathematical formula, each party being given its perfect proportion of the members in the Reich as indicated by the total number of votes cast. If our digest of the German system of election is correct, it is easy to understand why there are so many political parties in Germany and why it is almost impossible for any political party to secure a majority in the representative chamber.

The number of political parties seeking the complicated suffrage of the German voters in the late election has been estimated at about a score, representing every interest in the state, pagans and Christians, Royalists and Republicans, Socialists and Communists. Under such a system, as complex as the peculiar German mind, it is manifestly absurd to expect the establishment of a system of responsible and stable government. The essence of democracy as originally defined is simplicity. The core of the alleged Germanic democracy is a cumbersome system of complexity.

The true test of any political system is the manner in which it effects its designed purpose. In Great Britain, which is the birthplace of democracy, whatever may be said to the contrary, the test of the democratic system has been applied. In Great Britain and in the Dominions thereof, the democratic system works; it adjusts itself to all circumstances, conditions and developments. The reason why democracy apparently cannot be successfully applied to other countries and other peoples appears to be that other countries and other peoples are not psychologically or temperamentally adapted to the simple principles of true democracy—or it may be because other countries and other peoples distrust the democratic system merely because it is British and simple, and want to establish a system of their own devising, a system curious, complex and peculiar, like the workings of their own minds.

However these things may be, the democratic system as tried in Italy proved a complete fiasco, the democratic system as tampered with by Germany proved a disastrous failure, the democratic system of France has not proved a complete success, and even the democratic system of the United States has failed to give true government of the people for the people by the people, and of course the system adopted by Russia has given the government of the people complete control to the control of two or three individuals who control the Red Army.

A year or two ago there was a political spasm in Great Britain which appeared to threaten the democratic system of government and result in the establishment of a hybrid system, the illegitimate spawn of a combination of Socialism and Communism. But the British people rose in their might and averted that threatened evil. That short-lived convulsion resulted practically in the annihilation of one political party which was believed to be toying with the agents of Sovietism and in a new political party alignment. Today there are really only two political parties in Great Britain, and that is the condition under which the principles of true democracy can be successfully applied. Multiplication of political parties merely begets confusion, and confusion may culminate in chaos, which is the condition in Germany today.

But for Mr. Butterfield's always sparkling comment we should have missed reading about an interesting newspaper controversy. In his column our contemporary of the neighboring city recalls something to our mind we had forgotten, the real reason for the bitterness existing between Hon. Wm. Randy Hearst and the republic which assisted materially the American republic when its existence threatened in the balance. Historically, La Fayette is credited with having tipped the balance in the right or wrong way, according to the manner in which you consider it. Here is the situation, according to Mr. Butterfield's sprightly comment.

Because of the American attitude to the Franco-British agreement on war debts the French paper La Liberte has come through with one of the most indelicate pieces of vituperation yet printed. It says: "Does this government, which obeys gangsters, which capitulates before thieves and assassins of babies in their cradles, dare to assume such a height of moral authority that it thinks it can dictate to Europe and France? There is a lot more."

Mr. Randolph Hearst, in reprisal, hired a nation-wide radio hookup and abused France in even more viraculous terms, among which he said: "Let us call it plainly a crooked conspiracy by European

By something enigmatic in her heart,

Which gave no hint if it were flesh or stone.

Da Vinci, painting, saw her on a day

When sudden gladness flowered in her breast,

The smile upon her lips, within her eyes,

Still leaves a curious word to dream, to guess.

Was it a jewel or a savior gained,

The day she smiled that smile time leaves unexplained.

JUDGING RULES ARE ANNOUNCED

Up-Island Riding Clubs Show Keen Interest in Annual Exhibition

Owing to a large number of inquiries made from Up-Island points and the Mainland in connection with horse show entries, the rules of judging have been completed at an earlier date and are now available for perusal prior to submitting entries. W. H. Mearns, secretary of the British Columbia Agricultural Association, stated yesterday.

Up-Island riding clubs are showing particular interest this year, and there should be many horses sent from these clubs in the fair which starts August 22.

For the purpose of acquainting those planning to enter, the following rules have been drawn up:

LIST OF RULES

Each horse shall be ridden at the fences in his turn, according to the jumping programme in so far as possible. Penalties will be deducted as follows: First refusal or bolting, two faults; second refusal or bolting, four faults; third refusal, debarred; crashing through bars, five faults; horse or rider and horse falling at jump, debarred; a loss of front legs without knocking down the bar, two faults; a touch with hind legs without knocking down the bar, one fault; knocking down bar with front legs, four faults; knocking down bar with hind legs, two faults; fall of rider to appear in hunting costume or uniform in hunter classes, five faults.

When a horse makes a bad jump, the judges will use their own discretion as to the number of faults, and in making their awards will consider particularly the style and cleverness of the competing horses.

JUMPING PAIRS

In jumping pairs, the horses will be judged under the foregoing scale as one horse, and the manner in which they jump the fences abreast. The course for hunters and jumpers will commence at a point fifty feet from the first fence and will finish at a point fifty feet beyond the last fence.

Any rider or driver who does not obey the direction of the ring master shall be severely reprimanded and at the discretion of the ring master shall, if so ordered, withdraw from the ring.

If so requested, exhibitors shall display their hunters prior to regular performance to be judged for conformation in order to save time in conformation classes.

Horses not under sufficient control shall not be allowed to compete.

In judging, all ladies' horses' manners shall be considered paramount.

BUFFALOES PLAN ORPHANAGE HERE

Lodges Will Confer With View of Having Home Established in Victoria District

The establishment in the Victoria district of an orphanage and convalescent home is being considered by the Order of Buffaloes. It was learned here yesterday when arrangements were being made for a convention to be held shortly of members of the Order of Buffaloes, Lodge, Esquimalt, and the lodges in Vancouver.

Representatives at the joint conference from the Victoria Lodge will be Sir Knight Jordan, Sir Knight Mackie and Dr. Charles Espley, and they will make a determined effort to bring the discussions on the home establishment to a successful conclusion.

The maintenance of these institutions is one of the major activities of the order and the policy has been carried out for a number of years in various localities. The first Buffalo orphanage was opened in Aldridge, England, in 1898, and was added to in 1911. Since then many have been opened and there are many other forms of charitable undertakings for which the order is responsible. The Order of Buffaloes is believed to have been founded in 1823 and at present has a total membership of something like 16,000,000 in lodges in all parts of the world.

CESSATION OF RELIEF MOOTED

Unemployment Committee Lacks Advice From Two B.C. Centres

Advised by press dispatches that Burnaby and North Vancouver District would close unemployment relief accounts at the middle of this month, Hon. R. W. Bruhn said yesterday that he had not been advised officially of this course. The report said both municipalities would shut down on relief, on the ground that they were unable to find further funds to continue their share.

If these reports are correct, the Minister of Works indicated, the Government would have to examine the situation very carefully, as the Province itself has no express right to release any municipality from paying its proportionate share of the cost, under the Dominion-Provincial agreements, and any such release could only come from Ottawa.

FINANCE TROUBLES
Burnaby spent large sums of money on unemployment relief in 1930 and 1931, with Dominion and Provincial assistance. According to records here, it closed 1931 with a shortage of $70,000 in its sinking funds, as part of a larger difference between sinking funds and by-law moneys on that account. In the Spring the municipality asked the Government for a loan of approximately $175,000 outside of unemployment relief agreements, but this had to be refused.

Less in the public eye, North Vancouver District was named as one of three British Columbia municipalities which had financial difficulty earlier in the year; but succeeded in weathering its troubles, remaining in control of its own affairs.

NO CONFIRMATION
Officially, the Government was said to have had no advice as to any intention on the part of Burnaby or North Vancouver District to discontinue contribution towards relief costs.

If this action is taken, the whole matter would need to be referred to Ottawa, which alone could decide the question of what other arrangement it would be willing to make in that event. Federal officials have more than once said that municipalities cannot expect aid unless they bear their share of the cost of relief, a policy which the Province has had no option but to endorse.

In the absence of any official notification, members of the Government preferred yesterday to await events before expressing any further opinion on the matter.

Farrell, of Edmonton, conducted the service. Interment was made in the cemetery with the following acting as pallbearers: T. Tubman, W. D. Michell, G. F. Tanner, A. Anderson, H. E. Tanner and F. PROVINCE HOLDS HIGH POSITION

E. Hodgson Says British Columbia Stands Well in Estimation of Old Country People

E. Hodgson has returned after a visit to Europe in connection with some mining interests with which he is identified. He says that Great Britain is reviving in a marked degree. He found that the residents of the Old Country were awaiting the results of the economic conference before launching upon some further investments.

He says British Columbia stands high among the provinces of Canada with the British people. It was, therefore, to be expected that the bonds of this province would be taken in the Old Country ahead of some of the other provinces.

Meeting the party which W. A. MacAdam conducted to this country, Mr. Hodgson said that they were all enamored of British Columbia.

Sunday School Members Enjoy Annual Outing

Air Arm of Fleet Demonstrates Its Fighting Ability

"Blue Water" School of Naval Thought Has Former Convictions Shaken—King George Interested Spectator of Demonstrations

Forty airplanes of the Fleet Air Arm, torpedo bombers, fighters and reconnaissance craft, demonstrated before the King last month the devastating might of this new weapon of naval warfare. Later, in a day packed with thrills, the Prince of Wales ascended from the deck of the aircraft carrier Courageous and broadcast from mid-air to the entire fleet a message from his father in which the King declared that he was enjoying watching the operations of the aircraft carriers, a side of the work of a modern navy that the King had not previously studied.

Soon after the King had gone on board the Courageous, where he sat behind a glass windscreen to watch the flying, the first of the ship's complement of airplanes was brought on in the special lift which raises aircraft from the hangars below in less than two minutes. Soon the decks of Courageous and of the sister carrier Furious were thronged with aircraft. Swiftly engines were started, the roar of exhausts rising in a crescendo as the throttles were pushed open, and one after the other the airplanes ascended from the carriers, each climbing in a beautiful spiral and taking up its appointed position for the remarkable display that was to follow. Twelve fighting planes made swift bombing attacks on the carrier, using boxes of flour to bombard the flying deck. Nearly 100 per cent of hits were secured inside a thirty-foot circle, astonishing precision. Then fighter units from the Courageous attempted to repel an attack launched by three torpedo bombers, joining in dizzy aerial combat above the threatened warship. This encounter was repeated at the special request of His Majesty, who followed every movement of the battling aircraft with the keenest interest.

Six torpedo bombers, each with its deadly load slung in launching gear beneath the fuselage, attacked the carrier together. Though they approached 200 miles an hour, the direct hit shook the great vessel from stem to stern, and naval experts on board were not slow to estimate the damage that the projected would have done had the torpedo carried its warhead instead of a dummy. Precision of aiming was again demonstrated to notable effect when fighters bombed a splash target drawn at high speed behind a destroyer; with only a plume of spray at which to direct the bombs the fighter pilots raised time and again a high column of smoke from the exact spots where the targets had been. Finally a flight of reconnaissance two-seater

WARM WEATHER IS FORECAST

Continued fine and warm was the weather forecast for the next twenty-four hours made last night by Napier Denison, director of the Gonzales Observatory. Yesterday was the first warm spell Victoria has had for nearly a month. The highest temperature was reached during the afternoon, when the mercury climbed to eighty-three degrees.

Owing to abnormal conditions this year, it is impossible to predict with a degree of certainty any prolonged dry spell, Mr. Denison said.

Two-Quick Reducing Is Most Dangerous

Beauty Expert Warns Against Starvation Thinning Methods—Permanent Injury May Follow Use of "Quick" Remedies

GLADYS GLAD

Not long ago, a well-known novelist who had become somewhat overweight, decided to try to reduce. She took up riding and succeeded only in reducing the horse. She hired a burly physical trainer and succeeded in losing her breath and her dignity. She finally took to starving herself, because she wanted to reduce in a hurry. And though she did lose weight, she lost a great deal more. She began to look like a definite picture of slow starvation. She became cross and nervous. She just wanted to lie down all the time. And some of the time she just wanted to lie down and die.

It was, in other words, what you might call just another victim of the too-quick reducing method. In the snap of a finger she wanted to lose all the weight that it had taken her months to acquire. And it was not until she had injured her health and impaired her loveliness, that she realized how unwise she had been.

FOOLISH INDIVIDUAL

Any girl who embarks upon a reducing method of questionable merit just because it guarantees speedy results is a very foolish individual. For great damage can be done by poorly-planned reducing routine. The accumulation of fat is a slow and gradual process. And reduction should be just as slow and gradual. One of the worst dangers of too-rapidly reducing is the likelihood of developing a good reducing routine, like the one outlined in my New Figure booklet, is sufficiently speedy to satisfy even impatient individuals, and does not carry this danger. A get-thin-quick method that is not well planned, however, may cause serious damage. This, in case you don't know it, is a sinking down of the stomach and intestines. It is the abdominal fat that supports these organs. And when this fat is dissolved too rapidly, the support is removed and the stomach and intestines sink down in the resultant cavity, leaving the abdominal walls in a loose and flabby condition. A great deal of permanent harm to the health can be done if this condition is permitted to develop. No woman, therefore, should ever start on a reducing course without first making sure that it is a safe and reliable one.

Works of Art Secured for Art Gallery

From among the pictures and statuary included in the All-Canadian exhibition at the Vancouver Art Gallery, which closed recently, the founders have made the following selection for inclusion in the permanent collection of the gallery: "The Grey Veil," by Archibald Burns; "The Road to St. Fidele," by A. Y. Jackson; "Autumn in the Laurelana," by Mabel May, and "On the Beach," by J. W. Morrice.

The collection of sculpture now in the gallery has been enriched by the following purchases: A basewood bust, "The Queen of Sheba," by Claude W. Gray; terracotta piece, "The Wounded Soldier," by Charles Marega; and a model of a man's head, executed in pure tin, by Elizabeth Wyn Wood.

Just Roamin' Around

By TWO ROVERS

We went up to Duncan to see the Victoria Cricket Club play against the Cowichan Cricket Club last Saturday, and we had a dandy day.

First of all, we drove with three good fellows, who, enlivened the journey over the Malahat with merry quips and cheery songs, and many a good yarn passed from the jovial three into the safe keeping of two old rovers who are not too old to appreciate the unravelling of good yarns.

The Cowichan cricket ground is the nicest place to spend a day that we know of. "Just a little bit of old England," said the Australians; and so say all of us!

There are lovely meadows there, the like of which Victoria knows not. And, you may be quite sure, no one in all the length and breadth of Duncan and the Cowichan district is so untraveled, ignorant, or uncultured as to even suggest that any of these fine old trees be cut down to destroy the outlook and deprive the civilized citizens of a most happy community of the pleasure that grand old trees afford.

Victoria won the match! We won a wonderful dinner; and we insisted, and still insist, that we "marry the cook!"

THEY ROLL THEIR OWN

There are several cricket grounds in Victoria, but none of them actually belongs to any cricket club. The more shame to us, who love cricket, and who play cricket, that, in all these sixty-odd years in which the grand old game has been played in this vicinity, there has been no genuine effort made to acquire a good cricket ground or two for the clubs and by the clubs, who love and play the game.

One cannot count the magnificent University School grounds as they are the property of the school, and it is only through the courtesy of the school authorities that the city's cricket clubs are enabled to use them. As Rover and I are frequent visitors to these well-kept cricket fields, we herewith, thank the powers that be for the pleasure we have experienced out there so often!

A RETURN VISIT

On August 16 and 17, not quite two weeks away, the great Australian cricket team, "Good Will Tour, 1932," will be back here again!

Be sure to mark the note of those dates: August 16 and 17!

Go early and avoid the rush, and the crush on the street cars! And your young eyes and sweet hearts with you! But, if you are like two rovers, who have neither a wife nor a sweetheart, in that case, take someone else—unlucky to keep off the hot sun! Ho! Ho! You thought we were going to give you very different advice. Nothing doing!

SLOGGERS AND GOOGLES

Three cheers for all sloggers, who pile up their slugs.

With tours, in between times, by way of good measure:

See! muscle and brain-work, with good timing, mixed!

Our gratitude to all, who give us such pleasure!

And bowlers we love, too, who, scornful disaster,

Farmer Brown's Boy Hears a Scream
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

The merciful will always heed
The cry of one who is in need.

—Farmer Brown's Boy.

And Farmer Brown's Boy lives up to what he preaches. He is always ready to help any of the little people of the Green Forest, the Green Meadows and the Smiling Pool. They all know it, too. That is one reason that he is so much beloved by them. You see, they feel that they can trust him.

He had come over to the Smiling Pool to see how Mrs. Redwing the Blackbird was getting along with her family in her nest in the rushes and to see if he could get a glimpse of any of Jerry Muskrat's children and to see what else was to be seen. He is very fond of the Smiling Pool and knows all the little people who live in and around it.

Now it was at this very same time that Mr. Watersnake had taken it into his head to visit the Smiling Pool. Had he known that Farmer Brown's Boy was likely to appear there he would have postponed his visit, for he is one of the few who do not like Farmer Brown's Boy. You see, Mr. Watersnake is a robber and while Farmer Brown's Boy never has hurt him he has several times interfered with him and chased him away. So when he suspects that Farmer Brown's Boy is around Mr. Watersnake keeps out of sight.

He had reached the lily-pads in the Smiling Pool and with all but his head hidden by those big round leaves he looked around in the hope of seeing some unwary Frog whom he could catch, for he was hungry. At first, as he stared this way and that way with unblinking eyes, he saw no one. Then he saw Grandfather Frog sitting on his favorite big green lily-pad. Grandfather Frog had moved over so little, but enough to catch the attention of Mr. Watersnake.

"Hi!" exclaimed Mr. Watersnake under his breath. "There is that old croaker I have tried so many times to catch and unless my eyes deceive me he is asleep. He should know better than to go to sleep in a public place like that. Well, that is his hard luck and my good luck. I would rather catch him than any three other Frogs in the Smiling Pool. Imagine taking a nap right out in plain sight like that! I gave him credit for more sense than that."

Mr. Watersnake began to glide through the water, and that same smooth, easy manner in which Mr. Blacksnake glides over the ground. Some of the time his head was out so that he could watch Grandfather Frog, and some of the time he swam wholly under water. He

As the boundaries count up, they are never dismayed; With excellent patience, they roll pile the faster.

Come out! all you good sports, all day to review them. Enjoying the sixteenth and seventeenth as well. O! Here's hoping the weather's as fine as is due them; For, every good player's a jolly good fellow!

Critics Enthusiasm Over Work of English Actor in Play at Empire Theatre

Clever dialogue and polished acting, especially on the part of Leslie Howard, intelligently applied to piquant situations, make "Reserved for Ladies," opening at the Empire Theatre today, one of the most pleasing entertainment concoctions yet put out from a British studio. The story, which was used once before, in a slightly different form, for the Adolphe Menjou silent film of the same name, is basically a romantic fairy tale about a prince of head waiters, who falls in love with a society girl and follows her to Switzerland, where he woos her. Alexander Korda had directed the slender, yet effective material with an appropriately satirical touch, and with a keenly inquisitive camera that spies out the most amusing asides of even incident. The authority of the plot and the scenario have provided plenty of delightfully human touches and a profusion of sparkling "lines." And the players have wholeheartedly entered into the spirit of the thing. Leslie Howard, scoring the mantle of Menjou, adapts the role of the amorous head waiter to his own dignified style, and wins every ounce of sympathy in his quest of love and his ultimate defiance of social barriers.

CAPITOL The latest of "Chic" Sale's remarkable "old men" characterizations is to be seen in "When a Feller Needs a Friend," now at the Capitol Theatre, in which he plays the part of Jackie Cooper's aged but spirited uncle, Charles "Chic" Sale, who in actuality is less than half as old as his expert make-up usually depicts him, is a native of Huron, South Dakota.DOMINION Why blondes always are pitted against brunettes in romantic rivalries on the screen was explained recently by Dorothy Arzner, Hollywood's only active woman director. "If the leading woman is a brunette," she said, "the 'other woman' is a blonde. This works the other way also." In Paramount's "Merrily We Go to Hell," now at the Dominion Theatre, which Miss Arzner directed, Sylvia Sydney and Fredric March, who plays the affections of Fredric March, Miss Sydney, a brunette, portrays his wife, and Miss Allen is a blonde.COLUMBIA "The Riding Tornado," Tim McCoy's newest Western for Columbia, showing today at the Wallace MacDonald cast in a prominent role. MacDonald has played important parts in several "Daring Danger," in which he played the lovable role of Jug Handle. In "The Riding Tornado" he plays a part that has a surprise twist.PLAYHOUSE What is considered the most pretentious musical comedy ever produced since the advent of talking pictures closes tomorrow at the Playhouse Theatre. It is Radio Pictures' lavish, technicolor production of "Hit the Deck." Fourteen well known stage and screen players compose the cast which is headed by Polly Walker, Polly Douglas, and Jack Oakie, the sensational comedian. Four in the list were brought directly from New York to Hollywood to appear in the picture. Polly Walker, Roger Gray, Frank Woods and Marguerita Padua.ROMANO Six assistant directors of the picture, "The Riding Tornado," were needed to handle the crowd in the largest set ever built at Warner Brothers-First National Studios, that for "Union Depot," which features Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., with Joan Blondell and an all-star cast at the Romano Theatre this week. Al Green, director of the picture, estimates that the saving in the company in time and money on the set, employing as it did, thousands of extras, was the equivalent of at least five extra days of shooting.MOST FRUITS DO WELL. PENTICTON—Despite the fact that the fruit market is generally in a chaos, movement from the local packing houses continues to be fairly good. COUNCIL FAVORS LIGHTING SCHEME

Cumberland Street Improvement Will Be by Co-operative Effort With Maintenance by City

CUMBERLAND, Aug. 3.—The regular meeting of the City Council was held on Monday night, with Alderman W. P. Symons in the chair in the absence of Mayor Maxwell.

Very little business came before the meeting and only two communications were read. The assistant fire marshal wrote with reference to Union Hall, which the proprietor was now having torn down, complying with the request of the marshal, and there was a communication from the local Government agent concerning the case of a patient in the Cumberland Hospital, whose family is being looked after by the provincial authorities. E. W. Bickle waited on the city fathers and outlined the scheme advanced for the better lighting of Dunsmuir Avenue. Messrs. Bickle and Lang had offered to undertake the collecting of sufficient money for the purchase of the necessary material, the Cumberland Electric Lighting Company had offered to donate the labor, and Mr. Bickle wanted the assurance of the council that the city would maintain the project on completion. The council was wholeheartedly for the scheme and gave the necessary authority to Mr. Bickle to go ahead.

SCHOOL MEETING HELD AT SHIRLEY

Motion for New Tax Defeated—Decide That Nursing Service Be Continued

SHIRLEY, Aug. 4.—The adjourned annual meeting of the Shirley school district was held last evening, H. J. Kirby in the chair.

It was decided to reduce the teacher's salary to $700 per year, as there are so few taxpayers to make up the added taxation under the new schedule.

A motion to tax adult persons not otherwise paying school taxes was decisively defeated. The ratepayers decided to continue having the Esquimalt District Nursing Association nurse visit the school once a month for the ensuing year, her services being considered very satisfactory during the past year. The trustees were asked to send an appreciation of such service to the association. The statement of expenditure for last year was considered satisfactory, there being a balance on hand of $92. The sum of $10 was voted for the ensuing year's expenses.

G. A. Spencer of Alberni Passes

PORT ALBERNI, Aug. 4.—George Alexander Spencer, one of the most highly respected residents of Alberni district, died suddenly on Wednesday afternoon. He had been in ill health for the past year, but his death came as a great shock to his friends and family.

He had been a resident of Alberni for thirty-five years, and was one of those who worked for the incorporation of Alberni City. He was elected to the first council in 1912 and had sat as alderman for various terms, resigning last year on account of ill health. He is survived by his widow, residing here, and four sons, Norrie, of Los Angeles; Brian, an officer in the Canadian Navy, now home on leave, and Geoffrey and Alwin, at home.

WETTEST ON RECORD

NANAIMO, Aug. 4.—Last month was the wettest month in the history of Nanaimo, according to Lamont Rose, who has charge of the local weather bureau. The precipitation was 3.70 inches. The average rainfall for July for thirty years past was .84 of an inch. The rainfall for July last year was .46 of an inch.

His Worship Mayor Mason presided, and representatives were present from the Board of Trade, the Native Sons of B.C., the Army and Navy Veterans, the Board of School Trustees and the City Council, while J. A. Humbird was president from Chemainus on the invitation of Mayor Mason. The school children will be marshaled at the Cenotaph and Scout troops from Chemainus will attend. The veterans of the local unit of the Army and Navy will form a strong guard, while all local bodies and organizations will be represented.

SHIPS HEADING FOR CHURCHILL

Freighters Will Load Grain and General Cargo at Northern Port

MONTREAL, Aug. 4 (CP).—Carrying general cargo, the St. Lawrence, which sailed from Antwerp on Tuesday, is expected to arrive at Churchill on August 15 to load grain and general cargo for the eastbound trip over the Hudson Bay route, Thomas Harling, of Thomas Harling & Son, agents for the Dalgleish Line, owners of the St. Lawrence, stated here today. Mr. Harling said that he was unable to announce the amount of grain that the St. Lawrence would carry on her voyage to Great Britain from the Hudson Bay port. General cargo will be shipped, in addition to grain from the Prairies, he stated.

Another tramp steamer is also on its way to Churchill, the Sierentz, owned by the grain-trading firm of Louis Dreyfus & Co., which sailed from Oran, Algeria, on July 27. The Sierentz is expected to arrive at Churchill in company with the St. Lawrence.

National Steamers Leave St. Lawrence Ports With Cargoes

MONTREAL, Aug. 3.—Two Canadian National freighters, each heavily laden with Canadian goods for consumption elsewhere within the Empire, descend the St. Lawrence today. One is the St. Colborne, which sailed for the Eastern group of the British West Indies, via Halifax and Bermuda; the other is the St. Canadian Victor, which is bound for Australia.

The Canadian Victor carries a capacity cargo. She is making the first direct sailing between Canada's eastern ports and Australia for many months, others being routed to include New Zealand.

To further stimulate interest in "Vacationland," the Black Ball Line has added another pictorial folder medium. It is entitled "Victoria and Olympic Peninsula," and is devoted to one side to the resorts reached by the recently opened highway through the Olympics, and on the other side to the attractions offered by Victoria and the southern extremity of Vancouver Island, including Sidney.

Railway visitors in Victoria yesterday included B. A. Douman, general accountant of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railway, with headquarters at Chicago, and E. C. Kellogg, district passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railway system for the Northwest, with headquarters at Seattle. Mr. Kellogg is a frequent visitor to Victoria. Mr. Douman has been here for several days, and is accompanied by his daughter.

The Conewago nosed over the finish line of the twenty-one-mile course approximately twenty seconds ahead of Invader II.

CONTRACT AGREEMENT ON APPLE SHIPMENTS ENDED FOR PRESENT

Negotiations between Northwest apple shippers and conference lines in the Pacific Coast-European trade for a contract agreement on apple shipments have been discontinued, as far as the current season is concerned, but the contract idea has by no means been abandoned, it is stated in Seattle.

H. W. Burchard, chairman of the Northern apple committee of the conference lines, declared that negotiations have ceased for the present, but intimated that they will be resumed possibly this winter with a view to attaining a contract shipping agreement by the following season. Apple shippers of the Pacific Northwest district, it is indicated, have come to the decision that their refrigerated ship space needs can be more adequately and efficiently fulfilled through a contract system with the conference lines.

RUTH ALEXANDER LATE ARRIVING HERE; SHIP BOUND NORTH DELAYED

On her way to Alaska with a number of tourists aboard, the Pacific Steamship Company's liner St. Queen docked at Rithet's Pier from Seattle shortly after 8 o'clock last evening.

Passengers aboard the Queen spent the evening here, as the north-bound ship had to wait until 1 o'clock this morning for the arrival of the St. Ruth Alexander from San Francisco. The California ship had aboard a party of travelers for transfer to the north-bound ship.

Delayed by head winds off the coast, the Ruth Alexander was three hours late. The Queen was to sail for Ketchikan this morning, and the Ruth Alexander for Seattle at 7 o'clock.

Vancouver Shipping

VANCOUVER, Aug. 4 (CP).—The third monthly cargo of British Columbia lumber to be carried to Australia this summer by the ships of Yamashita Shipping Company, will go forward about the middle of this month. St. Selshe Maru is due at New Westminster on August 8 to commence loading. Previously St. Cukuro Maru loaded in July, and St. Yoshida Maru in June for the Antipodes.

Yamashita Shipping Co. St. Belfast Maru arrived this morning to land some general cargo and 700 bales of silk from the Orient. The silk proceeded overland this morning on Canadian National Railway main line. The ship shifted this afternoon to West Westminster to discharge 500 tons of goods. She is loading full to British Columbia ports and on Puget Sound with grain, spelter, plup, logs, lumber, flour and general. St. Cuba Maru will arrive August 10 to load full for the Orient.

Indications that more grain may be forwarded to Siberia this summer are contained in the monthly chartering report of Empire Shipping Company, agent for General Steamship Corporation Ltd. It states that in July there was an inquiry in the market for ship tonnage toward Vladivostok, but no business was accomplished because no spot tramps were available then. The report states that, during July, there were no full cargoes fixed for Japan, but the rate remained $3 to $3.50, which is less than tramp owners will consider for full cargoes. China indicated no desire for lumber tonnage. The American steamer, Mispila, has again been fixed for a full cargo of sulphate of ammonia from British Columbia to Honolulu, for September loading. All time charters in July on the Pacific Coast were made by Canadian Transport Co. Ltd., of Vancouver, and totaled 40 vessels.

Chemainus Shipping

CHEMAINUS, Aug. 4.—Shipments at the port of Chemainus during the week ending July 31, included the McLarene, Captain S. Carlson, for Port Townsend; St. Olympia, Captain H. S. Throckmorton, lumber cargo for Shanghai; Ma. Springbank, Captain J. H. Brook, lumber cargo for United Kingdom; barge Drumwall, Captain J. Sanderson, hog fuel for Port Angeles; St. Benvenuto, Captain W. H. Riddler, lumber cargo for United Kingdom; and St. Vinegar, Captain T. Sistrone, lumber cargo for United Kingdom.

Coastwise shipping included C.N. No. 1, Captain J. Palmer, for Port Mann; C.N. Barge No. 19, Captain J. Thompson, for Port Mann; St. Clayburn, Captain J. Tough, for Vancouver; St. Edna Mac, Captain A. Warren, for Victoria.

Ready to Take Helm Again

CAPTAIN Angus Walters is ready to take the helm again with his famous Bluenose, queen of the Atlantic fishing fleet, against the challenge of United States vessel, the Gertrude L. Thebaud. Captain Walters is seen above beside the Fishermen's Trophy, which the Bluenose has never lost. She has been defeated only once in a series of races, and that was an exhibition series at Gloucester, against the Thebaud. She reigns supreme in any kind of weather, squall or calm.

Lines Doing Better Business Just Now—Newspaper Tour Party Here Yesterday

With the warm weather prevailing during the past few days, the excursion vessels plying to and from the southern end of Vancouver Island have been receiving a great deal better patronage than at any time in July. Arriving here at her usual hour yesterday afternoon, the St. Louis had some 300 excursionists from Seattle aboard. The motorship Cy Peck was well filled on her Wednesday excursion through the Gulf Islands.

The Michigan-Minnesota Newspaper Tour, comprising the representatives of twenty-five daily newspapers of the two Middle-western states, and totaling forty-four in the party, spent several hours here, yesterday. The party is making the round trip over the Northern Pacific lines, and reached Victoria on the St. Princess Kathleen at 1 o'clock, from Seattle, returning there at 5:30 o'clock aboard the St. Princess Marguerite.

Arriving in Victoria, the members of the tour party, who were welcomed by B. C. Nicholas, following luncheon, the touring newspapermen and their families were taken on short drives to the various points of interest about the city.

WHITE WHALES WILL BE TESTED FOR OIL

WINNIPEG, Aug. 4.—From the schools of white whales in Hudson Bay, a number of specimens are on their way to Winnipeg in an express shipment over the Canadian National. When these mammals arrive here this week, the subcommittee on fish by-products of the Industrial Development Board will turn them over to the Harris Abattoir for experimental and investigation purposes.

The mammals are rich in oil. It is estimated that there are from fifteen to forty gallons in each, according to size. They weigh about 1,000 pounds, and portions of the hide are said to produce high quality leather.

NO PEACE FOR SWEEP WINNER

Life has become most burdensome for Sydney Lane, of Janshedpur, India, since he won more than $100,000 in the Grand National Sweep of Dublin, Irish Free State. So strong has become the onslaught of lonely women and energetic salesmen that Lane has left India and is on his way to find peace in Europe. He has had to struggle desperately to avoid the attentions of women of every age and kind who want to marry him, and of hundreds of others who bombard him with schemes for getting rid of his fortune with the least amount of trouble on his part. For weeks Lane's mail rivaled in its dimensions that of a screen star. Proposals of marriage from lonely, yearning, merely ambitious young women, each of whom feels that she is his "affinity," were reaching him constantly.

Jimmy McLarnin Loses Verdict to Rugged Brouillard

Vancouver Battler Drops Decision in Smashing Ten-Round Bout to Husky Southpaw—Mix Keeps 15,000 Spectators in Frenzy

By EDWARD J. NEIL
Associated Press Sports Writer.

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—A husky southpaw from New England, rugged Lou Brouillard, who won and lost the welterweight title all in a year, started back up again tonight with a smashing ten-round victory over Jimmy McLarnin, Irish courage of the lightweights. Brouillard weighed 146 1-2, McLarnin 144 1-2.

Back to the ring wars after a lapse of a full year, and plainly showing the effects of the lay-off, McLarnin found for one of the rare times, in a metropolitan ring, a foeman strong enough to take his best punches, and courageous enough to swarm back at him, punching furiously with both hands as he came.

There were no knockdowns, but there were trying minutes for both in a duel that stirred a crowd of 15,000 to frenzy at times.

McLARNIN BATTLED

Particularly in the third, sixth and eighth rounds did Brouillard—a strong, willing youth of only twenty-one—baffle McLarnin with his unorthodox style, and sting him badly with left swings to the jaw. Two-fisted body attacks doubled Jimmy up and forced him to hold and get his breath back. Yet in the last two rounds, as Brouillard, showing more valor than discretion, invited the Irishman to come in and fight, McLarnin hauled out with right-hand acceptance of the invitation that bounced off the French-Canadian's chin and hurt him badly.

McLarnin had never before fought a southpaw, and for two rounds, Brouillard's style puzzled him deeply.

JUDGES DIVIDED

The Associated Press score card gave Brouillard six rounds, McLarnin the last two, and two, the first and fifth, even. The decision of Referee Fatsy Haley and two judges was divided, one judge voting for McLarnin.

In the preliminaries, Ben Jeby, husky New Yorker, knocked out Leo Larriere, New England middleweight champion, with a single left hook to the chin in the first round.

Louis Kid Kaplan, former featherweight champion from Meriden, Conn., belted out an eight-round decision over Frankie Petrolle, brother of the famous Billy, the Fargo Express.

EXPLANATION FOR YESTERDAY'S RIPLEY CARTOON

A Hindu Sanson—Hindu sports enthusiasts refer to Moni Dhar as the "Man with the Million Dollar Hair." He claims to be able to lift 400 pounds off the ground with his locks. While this accomplishment has never been officially recorded, there are a few of strength credited to Moni Dhar which have official status. One is checking a running automobile with his bare hair, and the other is pulling a cart loaded with twenty children in the same fashion.

This latter event portrayed in my cartoon is drawn after an authentic photograph.

Local Olympic Riders Only Few Minutes Behind Leaders in Grueling Distance Race—Youthful Italian Ace Leads Home Large Field

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4 (AP).—Over a course which officials described as one of the most difficult in the history of the Olympic road race, Italy made a clean sweep of the long-distance cycling event today, winning individual and team honors.

Attilio Pavesi, youthful Italian ace, led the parade of nearly two score cyclists across the finish line in 2 hours 24 minutes 53 seconds for the course, which stretched across the mountainous road bordering the ocean between Moorpark and Olmo, aided by a strong wind.

Speeding into second and fourth places, two teammates, Guglielmo Segato and Giuseppe Olmo, aided Pavesi in bringing Italy first place in the team event with the fastest combined time, 7 hours 27 minutes 14 seconds.

Third place in the individual race was captured by Bernhard Britz, Sweden, 2:24:45 1-5; fifth, P. Sorenson, Denmark, 2:30:11 1-5; and sixth by Frank W. Southall, Great Britain, 2:30:16 1-5. Denmark took second place in the team competition, 7:38:30.

Sweden, third, 7:44:53; France, fifth, 7:46:31 3-5; and the United States, sixth, 7:51:53 3-5.

DEFENDING CHAMP UNPLACED

H. Hansen, of Denmark, defending champion, finished far back of the leaders. Officials said there was no comparable time for the road race of the 1928 games, but expressed the belief that Pavesi's time was exceptional.

Other finishers: G. Garzullani, Italy, 2:31:07 1-5; S. Hoegland, Sweden, 2:31:29 3-5; L. Nielsen, Denmark, 2:32:48 3-5; P. Connell, United States.

ENTRIES FOR THE JUNIOR FOOTBALL LEAGUE will open at a meeting to be held at the Y.M.C.A. on August 23, at 8 p.m.

AUSTRIAN GIRL LEADS FENCING
 Ellen Preis Shows Way in Individual Foil, Defending Champ Well Down

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4 (AP).—Winning five bouts and losing only one by tonight, Ellen Preis, of Austria, led the field tonight in the quest for the women's individual foil title in the Olympic Games fencing tournament.

She was close pressed by Erna Bogen, of Hungary, and Hether Seymour Guinness, of England, each of whom had won four bouts and lost one, while the defending champion, Helene Mayer, of Germany, was in danger of elimination, winning three and losing three.

In the men's individual foil semi-finals, Dernel Every, of the United States, was eliminated, but a fellow-countryman, Joseph L. Adams, Belgium, became the individual women's foil champion of the Olympic Games by defeating England's entrant, Heather Guinness, one point, after they had fenced off the each had won eight games and lost one.

Third honors went to Erna Bogen, of Hungary, and fourth to Mary Adams, Belgium.

Suffering a marked reversal of the form that made her a favorite in the semi-finals, Helene Mayer, of Germany, came close to defending champion, finished fifth.

Eight-Oared Crew of Canada Makes Great Showing in Try-Out

Hamilton Leanders Clocked in Amazing Time of 4:49 1/4 for Olympic Course—Bobby Pearce Heavy Favorite to Retain Singles Crown

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4.—Ten eight-oared crews will strive next week to win the feature rowing events of the Olympic Games. Only four are given a chance by rowing experts to succeed. They are Canada's crew from Hamilton Leander Club, New Zealand All-Blacks, University of California boatload representing the United States, and the long-stroking Leanders from London, England.

There may be a surprise, but the experts don't expect one. "The Bob Hunter" slim stream-lined craft in which Canada's hopes rest, and its broad-shouldered drivers have been closely watched by rival oarsmen who consider that if the Canadians can row the Olympic 3,000-metre course at Long Beach in as fast time as they accomplished at the Canadian Olympic trials at Port Dalhousie they are unbeatable.

MAKE FAST SPIN
 Leanders were clocked in the amazing time of 4:49 1/4 in the tryouts, several seconds better than any other crew in the game has done. In practice runs the Canadians are getting more used to their boat than any opposition crew, and their short, deep stroke, no faster than a long sweeping one, has caused wide comment.

Coach Hunter believes that the English boat, filled with Cambridge University oarsmen, is the most serious threat his men have to face with the United States second and the New Zealand eighth third. He does not think as highly of Germany's crew as many do. The Englishmen are the same crew that defeated Oxford in the varsity classic this Spring and captured the Grand Challenge Cup at the Royal Henley Regatta.

Bobby Pearce, giant Australian, now a resident of Hamilton, is the heavy favorite to retain his singles crown. He is a blond, wond sculler, who has never been beaten, is in perfect condition. The German, Gerhard Boetz, and Joe Wright, of Toronto, former Diamond Sculls winner, are Pearce's most dangerous opponents.

SEATTLE, Aug. 4.—Speedy Dado, flashy little Los Angeles Filipino, was awarded the decision over Roberto, Pasadena bantamweight, after eight furious rounds of a boxing card here last night. Dado weighed 117 pounds and Roberto 118.

The two little fellows kept up a furious pace throughout, swinging viciously with both hands and giving and taking plenty. Dado was wrestled to the floor in the first session, but bounced to his feet more or less peeled.

Two-thirds through the second stanza, Dado went down in the midst of a mild exchange, but went back to frenzied fighting without taking a count. For the remainder of the fracas both jabs kept their feet, with the Filipino jabbing away with his left at Roberto's face.

Dado took four rounds, Roberto two, and the rest were even. Willie Richie, champion of past years, was referee and sole judge for the main event.

Henry Woods, Yakima negro lightweight, won a six-round decision over Benny Fels, Portland, in the semi-final. Woods opened a cut over Benny's left eye early in the second round, and handed out a lot of punishment.

KID CHOCOLATE RETAINS TITLE
CHICAGO STADIUM, CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Kid Chocolate defended his junior lightweight championship tonight by outpunching Eddie Shea, Chicago challenger, in a ten-round bout.

The verdict of the two judges and Referee Phil Collins was unanimous. The general impression was that Chocolate outboxed the rip-tearing Shea in eight of the rounds. He won the first and the last.

In the third round the Cuban bonbon dropped Shea to the floor with a left hook to the body that appeared to be low.

Shea took a count of eight. The battle was a financial flop, with the gross receipts at $12,400. Chocolate scaled 127 1/2 and Shea 128.

THE LUCKY LAWRENCE

By KATHLEEN MORRIS

CHAPTER I
The Lawrence family, although in the best sense of the word pioneers, had not come to the Golden West by means of covered wagons. They had left their Boston moorings like the gentlefolk of means and leisure that they were, in the year of Our Lord eighteen hundred and forty-nine, and had sailed elegantly for Rio, for Buenos Aires and around the Horn. They had tolled in Valparaiso and in Lima for some weeks, taking things easily, in a leisurely way, and had in due time come up the stormy coast of California and had dropped anchor in the opalescent harbor of Yerba Buena.

For San Francisco had been familiarly known as Yerba Buena then and the blue waters of the bay had lapped the strand at Montezuma Street. The globe-trotters, magnificent Philip Lawrence and his frail Indian-shawled, pretty wife, had remained on the ship for a few days, for the excitement on shore promised small comfort for tourists. Thus they had enjoyed a safe view not only of the glorious harbor, but of the islands and the bay, and of the busy traffic between the Mexican, Spanish, Chinese and Japanese fishing smacks and the trading boats that had put off from the shore.

Early in their second week, however, they had been obliged to leave the shore. This was for two reasons, one important, one ridiculous. The important reason was that an heir to the Lawrence was about to be born. The absurd reason was that some preposterous person had discovered gold, or had pretended to, at a place called Butter Creek and that every one in Yerba Buena had promptly lost his senses.

Philip and Abigail Lawrence naturally did not lose their senses. They were rich anyway; they were above this undignified scramble for lucre. Philip had an income of three thousand a year and Abigail's father owned five sailing vessels in the Pacific. Philip had been in the business of the family since he was a child, and he had seen the ups and downs of the market.

But the sailors, and indeed the officers of the Abby Baldwin, were not above acquiring fortunes and they had instantly deserted the ship and made for the gold region. Philip and Abigail had remained on the ship, and in his little shallop he had rowed them and their carpet bags ashore. They had felt a little uneasy and bewildered, and Abigail very faint. But, pale and heroic and smiling she had said to Philip that within three days the men would be coming and that then they—Philip and she—would be able to make pretty stiff terms with them.

They had gone to the Frenchwoman's, a quaint-looking adobe house on a hill, with an upper balcony and shutters. There were no window-sashes but there were tents of mosquito-netting over the bed and the bare floors were clean. Downstairs was merely a level of dim arcades, earthen-floored and smelling of spilled wine, where men lounged on benches and where the Frenchwoman herself tended the bar. But the upstairs room had been comfortable enough and Abigail had put the dapperest of her mother—a hook-nosed ringlet woman in flowing striped silks—on the table, and had eaten a short meal of fish stew, dumplings, fresh soft black figs, sour bread and thin wine, with some appetite.

This would do for the present she had said. But one could not live quite like a savage, after all, and immediately after breakfast tomorrow Philip must find a really nice place, even if he had to buy it, and a good plain servant and a nurse. If not, then they would have to go back to the ship. So much for Philip's benefit. But when he had gone out after supper to walk about a little on the uneven hilly streets and listen to the shouting and singing of the strangely mixed population, and watch the card games, the drinking and the fights, Abigail had felt very low-spirited indeed and had cried a little secretly into the big hard French pillow. They had been eleven months getting so far and the baby was due in a few weeks more. Perhaps it would be weeks before they could get a crew on the Abby Baldwin.

Philip had returned flushed, distressed and annoyed from his search the next morning; he had returned flushed, distressed and increasingly annoyed from the searches of the following days. Desperate, he had rented a spanking team and a loose-wheeled buggy, and had begun to drive about the adjoining country looking for shelter.

For it had become obvious now that the crew was not going to return to the Abby Baldwin. The ship had swung round at last, and anchor in a dismal company of other deserted vessels week in and week out.

Meanwhile fifty miles southeast of foggy Yerba Buena they had found refuge on a rancho. It was managed by a widow, one Senora Castellazo, who lived farther south in another hacienda and was willing to rent this one to the strangers. A four-square adobe building of four empty rooms, shaded magnificently by natural oaks and by a plantation of beeches, gums, cottonwoods, figs and peppers, it had contained no furnishings whatsoever when the Lawrence had moved in.

But many trips up to the Abby Baldwin had pretty well transformed the dismal place. Philip, breathlessly grateful that somehow with the aid of a Mormon doctor from Benicia and the care of two well-eyed Mexican women, Abigail had actually brought forth a first-born daughter, and made no complaints.

Poor Abigail had laughed forlornly on the first anniversary of her wedding day. It had found her weak and weary, stretched on a mattress on the floor of one of the cool rooms, while a burning August day had hammered away at the spread level acres of the rancho outside. Beside her had been Annie Sarah.

Somewhat Abigail's ordeal had been got over and she had been free then to cry a little, thinking of her room at home in an orderly shaded Massachusetts village, with Ma's lavender-scented linen on the smooth bed and roses in a green glass vase on the bureau, and the lace curtains blowing softly in and out of the opened upstairs window. Lilies, trembling grass and Grandpa's grave in the graveyard, and doughnuts and currant jelly—oh, dear!

As soon as the baby and the mother were well upon the road to normal living, Philip and Abigail had seriously discussed going home. They had kept a sharp eye on all vessels that came in the Gale, and Philip had gone up to the city at least once a week to see what the chances were.

Then old Senora Castellazo had died and her sons had wished to dispose of the Santa Clara hacienda. Four hundred acres for nine hundred dollars. Philip had considered it a wise investment. There was fruit—some fruit—there already, there were sheep and cattle included in the sale price.

Upon consideration it had seemed to Philip that this sunshiny sheltered flat region, well inland, was the coming district and that by holding on to this property ten years—fifteen years, he and Abigail could not fail to be among the prosperous pioneers of the new world.

Meanwhile Fanny Lucy had been born. It had been rather trying that a fine ship had left for South America and that Philip had been very next day. She had delayed so long in San Francisco harbor that Philip and Abigail had really hoped to see the ship sail on her way. But Fanny Lucy had delayed too and had unconsciously affected her parents' destinies thereby.

For letters had gone to Boston on that ship and letters four months later somehow had struggled overland in answer. The respective hopes of Abigail and Philip had been perfectly delighted at their venture and wrote that they were certainly envious of the dwellers in the country where there were no snow, no thunderstorms and no poverty. They said they were having a terrible winter and that Abigail's father had shut himself up in the attic for nine days after hearing of the fate of the Abby Baldwin.

Philip's brother Silas and Abigail's brother Adoniram had been so fired with enthusiasm that they had sold their interest in the family shoe business and were now on their way to St. Joe hoping to join a blue-nosed crepe-clad widow of forty-seven who was sinking rapidly to the grave, as her years besmeared. But she had sent a message to the effect that she was coming too, soon as she could get rid of Sam's place.

This had somewhat flattered and somewhat dashed the western dream of the family but they had been more pleased than otherwise and had at once assumed the complacency of those whose judgment is justified.

In due course the four hundred acres became four thousand acres, and the fifteen head of cattle that the Lawrence family had owned became "the lucky Lawrence's." Brothers, cousins, old mother, old father, they flourished and waxed fat. Abigail bore eight daughters and a son, and the girls all married during the late sixties and early seventies, in a land in which women were still rare and prized.

San Francisco grew like a mushroom and Philip might have opened a thousand doors to great wealth had he been a man to see. But he had closed one after the other with his own hand and went blindly on in an infatuation of satisfaction with his rolling acres, his miles of fruit trees, the growing family over which he ruled supreme.

Some of the girls went East when they married, some lived in San Francisco or elsewhere, some died. It was not a salubrious day for pioneer women, with one out of every seven dying in childbirth. Some were opening boarding houses, scripping in lonely cross-road villages.

But not one of them ever forgot that she was a lucky Lawrence and belonged to a distinguished New England family. They hoarded mahogany and lace and yellowed old glass beryls; they sent back to Boston for faded primitive paintings; they talked incessantly of the significant fact that the Lawrence had not come to California as pioneers, oh dear, no! Mother Lawrence had come to San Francisco harbor on her wedding trip, on one of Grandfather Baldwin's own trading ships.

The one son, Patterson Lawrence, duly married too and lived in the house with which his parents had replaced the old adobe hacienda. The hacienda was used as a grain house, a place for hides and ropes and farm machinery. The new house stood six hundred feet nearer the highway and was reached by a long lane of poplars and eucalyptus. Abigail, and after her her daughters-in-law, in their fervor to encourage shade in that hot dry country planted everything upon which they could put their hands. They did not care for the pampas grass and the verberna tree, the peppers, and roses and evergreen would grow cheer. Thicker, darker every year. Eventually the pretentious old frame building with its scallops of mill work and its bay windows, its cupola and balustraded roof, was caught tightly in dusty heavy foliage, and the garden filled with mossy slippery patches where even in summer no light crept in on the sickly grass.

The house built in the early seventies had three wide steps in front coming up from the path, and a shallow veranda upon which bay windows, on either side of the door, protruded. The door itself was wide and made wider by the rectangles of colored glass that framed it. In the door were panels of dark red glass, with woodland scenes, deer, willow trees, bridges, etched upon them in white. For thirty years the house of Lawrence had been in eclipse and the garden showed it.

The baronial acres had long since peeled away; the sleepy prosperous town of Clipperville was situated where the Castellazo bull ring had once stood and only the four acres surrounding the house and a small farm some miles away down toward the marshes remained to the lucky Lawrence of the ancestral glory.

Here by acre old Philip Lawrence and his son Patterson had watched their fortunes decline; the old pioneer of the Yerba Buena days lived to see the end of the country and the end of his own prosperity, and died leaving what remained in hands even less capable than his own.

For Patterson Lawrence was a poet who lived merely to gather worthless old books about him, to dream over the pair, taking penning of insignificant essays which were rarely printed and for which he was never paid. He read papers to infant chambers of commerce from Sacramento to Riverside, comparing California to Athens, and hymning poppies, fog, Junipero and sea gulls in countless verses all beginning with rapturous praise of the Golden State.

At forty he married a poet's daughter who had been precariously existing for all her sixteen years upon bread, water and the Sonnets from the Portuguese in a shanty on Rincon Hill. Edith, before her early death brought to the house of Lawrence two sons and three daughters. Sixteen when she married, ten years later, when Ariel was born, she quietly, happily expired, to music, as it were.

For Patterson had been reading poetry to her, the four older children, by some miracle, quiet and occupied down by the creek, and Ariel in her mother's arms taking a fourth-day view of life, when death came.

"She looks as if she were listening, Pat! She's going to be a great poet and make all our fortunes!" Edith had said. And one minute later she had slipped away, leaving the prophecy to gild little Ariel's childhood.

The widowed elderly father did the best he could for them all until his eldest son was nearly eighteen and Gail a capable bustling housekeeper two years younger. Then the big guns began to boom across the water, the service flags flashed in answer upon many a quiet flagpole in Clipperville, and Patterson Lawrence, almost sixty-years old, put a copy of Keats in one pocket and a copy of Shelley in the other and hurried off to be hurried to an overworked Washington, just as sure as his loyal children were sure that he was helping his country and doing the patriotic thing.

Then Phil and Gail had to shoulder the burden. Gail Lawrence was supremely the girl for the job. She was squarely built, womanly at heart, brimming with interests, activities, ambitions and enthusiasms. By this time the once lucky Lawrence had almost no money. The ranch three miles back in Stanislaus was rented for something less than three hundred a year and taxes were always over two hundred. Phil had all but finished high school. But as Phil and Gail quite simply agreed, meals were more important than education. So Phil went to work at the time when Gail, upon being offered a job in the public library, accepted it gratefully.

They were proud of themselves and of their responsibility, and all Clipperville applauded them. They scrambled along in the disreputable old house very happily; they were always laughing, singing, going on picnics; they were passionately devoted to one another and every one was sure that they would get along splendidly. Were they not the last of the lucky Lawrence's?

Surest of all was Gail, the resolute undaunted optimistic mother and sister, cook, nurse and housewife in one. Life had been a story to Gail for a few years and she had turned a fresh page eagerly every day. She and Edith were going to marry a lighted man and Phil should marry too. And Sammy should live in Edith's house and Ariel in Gail's, and Ariel should write wonderful poetry. There would be plenty of money for everyone as there always had been—soon.

But somehow it had not worked out that way. Gail had grown a little more sober, a little thinner, as the years had slipped by; they had grown quieter, bookish, intellectual, something of a recluse. Sammy had done nothing except slide through his shoes and get D-minus marks in his studies. And Ariel was completely spoiled. They had all spoiled the shy thistle-down-headed little girl of ten, with a hoarse boy's voice, that she had been when her father had died. They had all hailed her as a poet before she could fairly write. She did write poetry and that was enough for Clipperville. Clipperville was not critical; the Challenge published everything Ariel wrote. And she was discontented, proud and unmanageable and would not go to school without constant urging and under constant protest.

Altogether the outlook was discouraging and promising to grow more so. There were moments when even Gail could not quite believe in the luck of the Lawrence's.

Her twenty-third birthday found Gail a quick-witted eager capable girl, secretly a little bit scared and doubtful but outwardly gay, irresponsible and pleasant to look at. Like all the Lawrence's. The older four had tawny thick hair; Phil's was closely cropped; Edith wore her hair in severe braids; Sam was often a disheveled scandal, and Gail's was much better. But Gail's was the waviest, the brightest, the thickest. These four had blue eyes, thick black lashes, heavy eyebrows and square-fingered hands. The Lawrence hands were different from any other hands in Clipperville. The Lawrence's stood on their feet peculiarly too, braced like young blooded horses at stance, their names thrown back, the whites of their eyes showing.

Ariel was different; frail, pink-cheeked and cream-skinned, with frightened hazel eyes and an angel mouth. Ariel's hair was corn-silk, and she never stood anywhere at all; she floated or drifted or slipped through life.
